

Flagg & Homan Pewter

It looks like Sterling Silver.

This is constantly and aptly remarked of Flagg & Homan Pewter, and by the way, is what the Old Pewterers strove to accomplish and did attain in their best work.

Very few indeed of the Modern Pewterers even attempt this standard, because they are concerned in how cheaply they can make anything that may be marketed under cover of the name Pewter.

Using light gauge metals, and omitting the costly and tedious labor necessary to obtain a fine surface or sheen, their products entirely lack the charm and beauty of finish of correct Pewter.

Place a piece of Flagg & Homan Pewter beside any article of this so called Pewter, and the difference is at once obvious. Indeed, dealers, who were previously unable to move Pewter, have found sales resistance disappear, when they began to offer the Flagg & Homan Line.

The new patterns shown in these pages, supplement the comprehensive assortment of Pewter in Catalog No. 54. These additional patterns include many small articles, suitable for bridge prizes, or inexpensive gifts, such as Bon Bon Dishes, Compotes, Ash Trays, Bridge Smokers' Sets, Cigarette Containers, etc.

Likewise, there are such added items as two and three light Candelabra, Bread Trays, Sandwich Plates, fine old forms of Bowls and Dishes, and several pieces in the fashion of Scandinavian Pewter.

All new patterns are executed in the heavy gauge, special alloy, Flagg & Homan metal, and in the superlative grade of craftsmanship and finish that have won the line lasting distinction.
